Out of sight

—out of mind. That's the way with things in the laundry and the kitchen. Perhaps you think they're using Pearline there. And your linen is going to pieces, and you're dissatisfied with the work and you're blaming Pearline for all the trouble. If this is the case, you can make up your mind either that Pearline isn't used, or that something else is used with it, which does the damage. It can't be done by Pearline.

You'll probably find that they're trying to wash with some of the imitations that peddlers, prize-givers and unscrupulous grocers are palming off upon servants and some who can't see the danger. Look into the kitchen for yourself—see that they use Pearline.

Send it Back Beware—some unscrupulous grocers will tell you "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, be honest—send it back. 347 JAMES PYLE, New York.

Leon's Sarsaparilla.

The Kind that Never Fails

Leon's Sarsaparilla Co., Belfast, Me.:

Gentlemen:—Last winter, like many others, I was attacked with the grip, from which I have never fully rallied. I lost my appetite and strength, felt weak in the legs, and was generally "used up." I tried various remedies, but received no benefit from them.

A short time since I was induced to try a bottle of Leon's Sarsaparilla, and its effect has been wonderful. I have no weakness in my legs, and my appetite is good, and my general health is improving as rapidly as I could hope for. My improvement has been so marked that my wife, who is troubled with a weak back, is now trying your medicine, feeling confident that it will help her. I take pleasure in recommending Leon's Sarsaparilla to all who are suffering from the grip.

The Sentinel and News both deplore the appointment and cite Burke's legislative record as an unsavory one, and say he has always been the mouthpiece of the lobby and friend of corporations. Lucius C. DR. THOMAS' SERMON

At the Installation Services of Rev. E. B. Bary.

Able and Eloquent Address at the Central Church Tuesday.

The following is the full text of the very able sermon delivered by Rev. Reuen Thomas, D. D., of Brookline, Mass., at the installation services of Rev. E. B. Bary, as pastor of the Central Church, Tuesday evening:

2 Cor. II.16.—"For us as a sweet savour of Christ unto God, in them that are being saved and in them that are perishing; to the one a savour from death unto death; to the other a savour from life unto life."

To some of us these will be mysterious and unintelligible words, and yet they contain a truth which is illustrated every day and everywhere in the ordinary life of man—the truth that the very same thing is a blessing to one man, a curse to another; to one it brings life, to another it brings death.

The occasion in the life of the Apostle Paul which forced this utterance to his life was one connected with church discipline. There was a case in the church of Corinth where a member must be excommunicated. At first Paul seems to have had the purpose to go to Corinth himself. But he changed his mind and left the Corinthians to do the work of excommunication themselves. It was their duty and responsibility, and they must undertake it. The change of mind in the apostle had by some of the Corinthians been put down to mere caprice and want of interest in them. St. Paul replies to that. He says, "So anxious was I about you that when I came to Troas and found not there Titus with letters from Corinth, I had no rest in my spirit. And though a door of opportunity was wide open at Troas, I did not enter at the open door. I went into Macedonia." There he met Titus with the letters from Corinth, in which was better news even than he hoped for. The church had excommunicated the criminal. The criminal had become penitent, and restoration had thus become a future possibility; for the apostle was much more ready to restore than to condemn. For awhile Paul was anxious; he did not wish to loose his influence over the church at Corinth. "But (as says F. W. Robertson), he had spoken in sincerity and godly truthfulness, and sincerity is best. He felt that he had won, though a few hours before his work seemed over in Corinth. Thence we can divine the truth that the Christian is a Conqueror, even in defeat. His is always a triumphant career sooner or later. This was not a lesson for St. Paul only, but it is one also for us. On earth we have nothing to do with success or with results, but only with being true to God and for God; for it is sincerity and not success, which is the sweet savour (as of the smoke from the altar of incense) before God."

Out of this incident arose the declaration of the truth we have in the words I have read; one of the truths to which we need to give much more attention than is common; that whether the Christian worker is successful in this world or not so long as he is sincere and speaks the truth in love he is no failure. Christ does not so account him. For to be sincere and to speak the truth in love is, so far as he himself personally is concerned, to be successful. There is nothing so hard to learn, nothing that we need so much to learn as this: that "defeat in doing right is still victory." There is no man in this world so badly beaten as the man who is willing to take and live on the profits of wrong doing. We have, however, to recognize the fact that by doing right and being true to conscience, we may lose influence over men. That the man who does the right and speaks the true, honest, needful word, is not defeated. He, in God's sight is not defeated. It is the other man, the man who counts him his enemy because he tells him the truth.

Now take this truth and see how Paul uses it. He gives it the widest possible application. To all Christian preachers and teachers everywhere the same truth belongs. And all need it. At first that which the apostle says almost makes us shudder. He says substantially this: 'There can be no doubt that the faithful preaching of the Gospel sometimes kills. But it is no less the Gospel, no less a sweet incense to God.' To take an illustration from another. "Just as the vigorous breezes that are fresh life to the strong, are pain to the feeble lungs, so truth, strong truth put before the haters of truth, makes them worse."

Now, this may seem to be a very sad truth and one to bring despondency to a preacher and teacher. But it did not bring despondency to the apostle. It brought a sense of relief though a sense of responsibility. It made him cry out, Who is sufficient for these things? But there was in it a kind of comfort. It limited the area of responsibility. We can imagine the apostle asking himself 'for how much am I responsible?' The conclusion at which he arrives is this: I am responsible for preaching the Gospel sincerely and lovingly. I am not responsible for its reception. God is as much pleased with me personally when men reject it as when they receive it. We are a sweet savour unto God in them that are being saved and in them who are perishing. They have had the Gospel presented to them anyway. The responsibility is off me and on them. There is such a thing as a cowardly shifting off responsibility, but there is such a thing as a brave, even inevitable, putting off responsibility. But I will say no more on this particular part of our theme. It necessarily is out of the reach of everyone to whom the words 'spiritual responsibility have little or no meaning.'

This truth while primarily applicable to Gospel preachers is not, however, limited to Gospel preachers and to those who teach the things of the kingdom of God. It has a wider sweep. It belongs to everybody. The very same thing in life is to one man a blessing, to another man a curse. I want to so illustrate that fact that it shall be put beyond question, that in these words of St. Paul's there is one of the great laws of human life from which none of us can escape. Everywhere and in relation to all the blessings of life, there are some who are being saved by them, and some who are perishing by them.

Let us begin by taking what we call personal freedom. In this America of ours, men idolize freedom, not simply political freedom which is essential to wise and good and popular government, but moral freedom, freedom of opinion, anything to which you can get the word applied. And the idea of the essential good of freedom is very often so used as to antagonize the idea of law and order and discipline in the family as well as in the State. Now, while that freedom which man needs for developing his virtues and graces his manhood on all sides of it, into the fullness of its competency is his right, it is impossible to give a man a right to be a thief, a murderer, a drunkard, a liar. Never can men be allowed the right of such freedom. So that we see that while freedom is a good thing for a good man, it is a bad thing for a bad man. To the good man it is the savour of life unto life, to the bad man it is the savour of death unto death. Take another familiar illustration. Our nature has in it a region to which we apply the word affectional. Out of it are the issues of life. That which a man loves and that which he hates denote the kind and quality of man he is. The highest relationships and noblest friendships of life, all are made possible by the existence of this affectional region. When true, sincere, pure love reigns there, life is by it ennobled and enriched. It is redeemed from its selfishness. The love of father, mother, brother, sister, wife, children, friends, when pure and real, refines, illumines and purifies the life. Each has its own specialty, but all together are a savour of life unto life. Yet the very same affection which God has put into us for the highest uses may become "a savour of death unto death." That which was intended to purify and enlarge and ennoble life may be so used as to pollute, narrow and demean it beyond anything else. The best endowment we have may be so badly directed and used that that which was intended to be a savour of life unto life may become a savour of death unto death.

Let us take yet one more illustration, the activity of intelligence in man. It may be used in a noble and refined way under the leading of conscience, or it may be so used as to be at the service of every scamp and scoundrel in the community. In the one case it is a savour of life unto life, in the other a savour of death unto death. The lawyer stands for justice and its administration. The merchant stands for integrity. The politician stands for patriotism. Yet the lawyer may use his trained faculty to defeat justice, the merchant may use his business knowledge to cheat his customers, and the politician may be so empty of any true, patriotic feeling as to be a very Aaron Burr, ready to betray his country to its worst enemies, and we must remember ever that internal enemies are far worse than external. External enemies have often been blessings, internal enemies never. The fact I wish to make clear and strong is this—that in every case the same thing is the source of blessing and the source of cursing. "To the one freedom is a savour of life unto life, to the other a savour of death unto death." To the one the love power in man is a savor of life unto life, to the other a savor of death unto death. To the one, intelligence is a savor of life unto life, to the other, a savor of death unto death. And so we might take every good thing in man—every blessing which comes within his reach, and show that the very same thing operates towards the production of life or of death—towards salvation or destruction. One man is so using the world as that all the while the world is his servant. His neighbor is so using the very same world, with exactly the same conditions, as that it is becoming his master and he its slave. To one man it is a savor of life unto life, to another a savor of death unto death. And even religion's self may be so used. Even the services of the sanctuary may be so used, the praises which speak of Heaven and God and Immortality so irreverently, so undevoutly and so unthoughtfully, as to be "a savor of death unto death instead of a savor of life unto life." The same great law runs through all departments of our life. Everything tends to our being saved or to our perishing, and the very identical self-same thing which contributes towards making one man a saint operates towards the making another man a devil. John and Judas were subjected to the same influences, and under them one became the disciple that Jesus loved—the other the traitor. It is an awful possibility, this of so using God's good gifts as to destroy ourselves.

And yet how to make a world without including in it that possibility is difficult to see. Whenever individuality and personality come in, that is, freedom, there must be this liability. You cannot have the personal good without the possibility of the evil. Unless a man may fall, there is no virtue possible to him, no merit, no anything, personally good. A machine cannot sin, a man can. There is no way we can see of making a man, free from liability to sin, without constituting him a machine. Then there is no man. But does not the fact we have before our mind and which cannot be ignored, that the same thing is a blessing or a curse, according to our use of it, throw some light into that cloud which we call the mystery of evil? Does it not bring that mystery a little more within our grasp? Does it not help us to conceive of this thing we call evil as being not some independent thing in itself, which has existed in the Universe forever, and to which forever we are liable, but as a dependent thing, like a shadow of a man, which is dependent on the man? And does it not make evil to be man's own inconsistency with himself, his attack upon himself, his punishment of himself? And does it not have the fair face of Deity, untroubled with that frown which, to many men, has always been on it? Does it not put the evil among the things which have limitations, among dependent things, among things which have no life in themselves? The evil is only the good, wrongly, wilfully, ignorantly, wickedly used. We see it everywhere. Family life is good, a Divine Institution; but how often it becomes the source of the most intolerable and chronic misery by ignorant and evil use. Church life is good—a Divine institution, but how often it stands in the community for God's call refused! National life is good—a Divine Institution, but how often it is used so as to promote antagonism and even the culture of hatred toward other nations. The very best things are made "a savor of death unto death" and made a means whereby a man gradually destroys all that is good in his nature. So that we every day look upon, two classes of persons walking our streets, using the self-same things, and yet by the use some are being saved and some are perishing. There is something very mysterious about this fact, and yet, deny it we cannot, for it is a fact so common and every-day that its very commonness blinds us to its mystery and significance.

If it were only that by the use of the same things, under the same conditions, men attained to a higher or lower level of good, according to the amount of vitality in them, that would be intelligible. But that under the same Divine influences, the same natural laws, the same family conditions, the same educational advantages, the same social surroundings, the same religious opportunities, the same sun shining on him by day, the same moon and stars by night, the same Divine Providence operating upon and influencing both, one man should become a David Livingstone and another man the incarnation of all that is infidel in feeling and idea—mean, selfish and cruel, is there not a mystery in this which must remain a mystery until the light of Eternity shall be poured into and around every soul of man? The fact cannot be disputed. The reason of the fact remains hidden.

Let us now take this fact and see if it will do anything towards illuming the future. For every fact has relation to past, present and future. In thinking of man's future beyond the line we call death some of our ideas are very crude. We are given to think of Heaven only as a place; of hell only as a place; of the happiness of Heaven as dependent upon outward conditions; of the misery of the lost world as dependent upon outward conditions only. This is natural enough, for rude and uncultivated people. But as the mind grows into a more perfect understanding of itself and of life, the idea of place, the misery that one place may bring and the happiness another place may have in it becomes secondary. We get more and more to feel that happiness and misery belong more to the person than to the place. The old hymn has the right idea:

"While place we seek or place we shun,
The soul finds happiness in none."

I know of no more pitiable set of people in the socially respectable ranks of life than those you meet on every train that leaves the station and every ship that leaves the wharf—people seeking apparently to get their attention off from themselves by incessant moving from place to place, "like the troubled sea which cannot rest." John Ruskin says that such people are always selfish and hardhearted.

One of the most illuming of truths is that conveyed in our Lord's words, "The kingdom of God is within you." As if he should say, Until you get the within light, the without cannot but be wrong. If a man is miserable and wrong within, a garden of Eden would have no loveliness in it. Now as a man by his thinking and feeling and doing creates his attitude towards the present, so also he creates it toward the future, and that of necessity.

No special fixed, unalterable future is fatalistically thrust upon him. All around him may be as here, that which is in itself orderly and good and yet the bad heart would spoil it all. The evil heart is sure to associate the idea of its misery with something outside itself, while the source and secret of it all may be entirely within.

Such facts will help us to answer the question which has often been asked: "How is it consistent with the idea of such a God as Christ teaches that he should create a place of torment—a place specially designed to give torment? Now, we have learnt that idea more from Milton and from Dante than from the Scriptures. And yet even Milton does not make the torment depend upon the place. "The dark, opprobrious den of shame" is not the chief or only source of misery.

"Horror and doubt distract
His troubled thoughts and from the bottom stir
The Hell within him; for
Within him hell he brings, and round about him,
nor from Hell
One step no more than from himself can fly."

And in another place Satan is made to say—

"Myself am hell."

There is no necessity for assuming any such creation of God's as that of a place of torment, all and everything of whose torment is in the place. In the light of this theme, if you were to put Shylock, and Dives, and Iago and Judas into heaven it would be hell to them, for all its blessings would be so misused that they would, to such as these, lose their character.

Here on earth we see prosperity cursing men and women and making them more and more selfish and inhuman. Here on earth we see every good thing so employed by men bad and wrong in head and heart, that the good is turned into the evil. How do we know that it will not be so elsewhere?

As a matter of fact we see the family, the church, the nation, divine institutions on which all the progress of the world depends, so employed by men that the men are the worse for them and not the better.

The Jewish nation did not fill its cup of faithlessness to the brim until it crucified Jesus of Nazareth. Then came the end: then Titus and his infuriated soldiers; then that scattering which has continued to this day; an event so remarkable that I wonder it does not impress us more.

"This is the condemnation that light is come into the world," etc. I think that it is probable, in the light of this teaching of our Lord's, that the next state of all ungodly men will be the pouring such an excess of light into their lives, as into the life of Dives, that their ungodliness will appear in its true nature; not something as here which men can jest over, but the most monstrous of all conditions of soul. Such inferences as to the future are, I think, legitimately drawn from the facts around us which none can deny, the common and mysterious fact that the very self-same thing which in the using of a good man is a blessing, in the hand of a bad man turns into a curse. And the higher and nobler the thing in its own nature, the more harm it seems to do to the man whose heart is not right in the sight of God. I ask you seriously to think how much there is in that one fact. The very same influences which made Washington a patriot made Aaron Burr a traitor. The very same influences which made John the disciple whom Jesus loved, made Judas the man whose name has been so execrated that no mother dare put it on her boy, the man concerning whom our Lord said, "Good were it for him if he had never been born." There could have been no Judas if there had been no Jesus.

I have said that the higher and nobler the thing in its own value, the more is it exposed to misuse by the man whose heart is not right before God. There is no conceit in saying that the highest institution on earth is the church of God. It is the highest because its foundation is in the Divine humanity of Jesus Christ, and because building on this foundation, that, which is erected thereon must of necessity take its size and its character from the size and character of the foundation. May we not say without any exaggeration that the aim of the church is to institutionalize the Divine humanity of Christ? It is to bring that Divine humanity into such practical permanent operation as that it shall be independent of men who come and go?

Men continue not by reason of death. They have none of that high priesthood which is forever after the order of Melchisedeck. The man dies, the truth lives, lives in some embodying and expressive institution which has no reason for its being and no explanation of its life apart from some great vitalizing truth. The Church has no meaning apart from the truth that there is a continuance of the divine humanity of Christ in the world, a perpetual impartation of spiritual life from the Unseen in the seen, and that spiritual life is known as to its origin and its quality by the simple fact that it recognizes Christ as its source, and reproduces under the limitations of our varied personalities, the Christ-Spirit. The Incarnation of the Word of God in Christ shows us that that which is truly Divine is human and that which is perfectly human is Divine. The Divine and Human meet and focus themselves in this Christ as in none other. And the Church is a Divine-human Institution. If the Divine cannot come into the human and be at-one with it, the Church has no meaning. If the human cannot receive the Divine and be at-one with it, the Church has no meaning. The Church is the Divine humanity of Christ institutionalized, or, if you like it better, the atonement (at-one-ment) which is in Christ institutionalized. Hence its high and glorious nature.

But being so high and noble it is capable of being sorely misrepresented and abused. Men may so use it as that it shall be to them the savor of death unto death and not the savor of life unto life. They may sectarianize its life and use Jesus, the Christ, simply as the instrument for creating, and giving respectability to, a sect. There cannot be a doubt that to some men Jesus Christ is valuable for sectarian purposes, or because his words can be made to support a theory, or continue a school of thought, or vitalize a creed, or sanctify a theology. All this is pitiable, and the men who so use Christ and the Church are excusable only because, perhaps, it is the best they can do with him. There are regions of Christian truth which many Christian men have never entered, which they have therefore, never explored, of which they have no idea. There are truths which are so through and through Christian that the moment you enter them, they seem heretical, simply because they are unfamiliar, or too great for the intellectual grasp of the average man. That which this church has stood for during these past years I need not particularly say. Of the Biblical Catholicity of the teaching of this pulpit during these years past under the ministry of your gifted ex-pastor it is not now necessary to speak. Nor could I trust myself to say that which I should have to say in order to be true to myself. I will not say that I pity his successor, whoever that successor might be, for such a ministry necessarily leaves behind it a spiritual atmosphere full of genial lovableness and kind considerations. It is always easier to follow a great man than a small one, as it is easier through the forests to track the lion than the squirrel or the rat, for one of these diminutive creatures is sure to go up a tree and the other into a hole.

Here there has been no sectarian Christ preached but the Divine humanity as fully and faithfully as man can preach it. The church we most need to-day is of that order in which every Christian heart can feel at home and in which every Ecclesiastical Adullamite [illegible] got out of and into a cave. Of certain types of Christians and churches we need no more. We have too many already. But of the nobler types we can never have enough. If the new is the nobler we want it—not else. A Biblical Theology in the pulpit, a Biblical Christian in the pew and a Biblical Catholicity of church order are always needed. Hackneyed as have become the words of the great and good poet, who so recently left this earth of ours for something better, yet they are hackneyed because they so fitly express our needs. In the pulpit we need ever "the valiant man and free." In the pew we need "the larger heart, the kindlier hand." Thus and thus only can we chase "out the darkness of the land and bring in the Christ that is to be."

SWEETER THAN A BEST GIRL.

Sugar, Molasses and Honey Are Nowhere In Comparison With Saccharine.

An industry still young, but unquestionably with a great mercantile future, is that of saccharine, a product of coal tar. It is a substitute for sugar, has none of its bulk and is so powerful that it is 300 times sweeter. The history of its discovery is interesting.

In 1879 Dr. Constantine Fahlberg, a Russian by birth, but who had been educated in Germany, became connected with the Johns Hopkins university in Baltimore. There he conducted a series of experiments on the toluene sulphamides, in order to investigate their oxidation products.

The outgrowth of this investigation was the discovery of saccharine. By oxidizing pure orthotoluene sulphamide it was found that it would yield a remarkably sweet compound. The amount obtained, however, was too small to be of any practical value for manufacturing purposes. The problem thenceforth was to find other reactions which would give a better yield of the sweet body. A long and exhaustive series of laboratory experiments extending through several years were necessary for the satisfactory development of the chemical process of production.

As might be expected, a discovery of such practical utility had to run the gantlet of much hostile criticism. It formed a fruitful subject for discussion in various scientific societies and journals. Attempts were made to show that it was not only deleterious, but dangerous. It is only fair to say, however, that these arguments seem to have been successfully controverted. An overwhelming mass of expert testimony is recorded in favor of saccharine. Eminent professors, like Sir H. E. Roscoe in London, Leyden in Berlin, Paul in Paris, Von Barth in Vienna, and a host of others, after thorough tests, have certified that the effects of saccharine upon the physical and psychical functions of the brute and human systems are entirely harmless.

Saccharine in its pure condition is a white powder. Various exclusive advantages are claimed for its use in the arts, household and medicine. To enumerate a few: It is so small in bulk that the saving in storage and freight is of course very great; its valuable antiseptic qualities make it especially available in preserving as well as sweetening articles of food, such as jellies, fruits, etc. In the distilling of brandies and liquors and in the brewing of beer saccharine has been used with signal success. Mixed with glucose, saccharine has a sweetness equal to the finest refined sugar. Further, saccharine serves a distinctly medicinal purpose. It is employed to disguise the unpleasant taste of medicine and in the preparation of medicated wines and other cordials. It has also been highly indorsed as a substitute for sugar for those suffering from diabetes and from fatness. Unlike sugar, it does not go to form surplus nourishment. Finally it may be added that this highly concentrated sweetening substance requires only a little intelligence to be successfully used in the household.—Washington Star

New Use For a Linen Cuff.

"Look here," said a well known man the other day, "this is a letter from a friend who is now in Pittsburg." The speaker produced a soiled cuff on which a message had been written. The cuff bore the stamp of the Pittsburg postoffice, as well as a canceled postage stamp. The message read: "I haven't any paper at hand, but Uncle Sam will transmit this cuff, for which I have no further use. Linen is of no use to a man who is dead flat busted. Send me $100."—Philadelphia Record.

SPRING NEEDS.

In Considering Your Wants Do Not Forget This.

If You Do You Will Make a Serious Mistake at This Season.

Something of Deep and Peculiar Interest Just Now.

There are many needs during the spring months, but none more necessary or urgent than the use of a spring medicine. The blood requires it and the nerves, liver, kidneys and bowels must have it if you desire to keep strong and vigorous and maintain your good health. Those who are weak, tired and nervous must take it, and those who do not feel just right should do so, or serious ill health may follow.

Mrs. Charles Krueger, of 520 East ... St., New York City, tells you what is to her the best remedy to take in the spring.

MRS. CHARLES KRUEGER.

"For several years I have been suffering from a complication of malaria, kidney and liver complaints, and dyspepsia in its worst form.

"I began taking Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. I have used six bottles, and now feel entirely relieved of all my former complaints, and do cheerfully recommend it to anyone who may be afflicted with any of the above troubles."

Mrs. Jennie Anthony, who resides at ... Green St., Lynn, Mass., says:

"I must tell what Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy has done for me. I had terrible headaches for ... years. At last they got so bad I feared I should go insane and made my friends promise that ... [illegible] and eat well, am not nervous, my kidneys are healthy and blood pure.

"In short, I was saved from that terrible fate, insanity or prostration by this wonderful remedy."

You will see, therefore, that Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is just what you need to invigorate and enrich your blood, strengthen your nerves, and get the liver, kidney and bowels in a natural and healthy condition. It is purely vegetable and harmless and is for sale by druggists for $1. Dr. Greene, of 34 Temple Place, Boston, Mass., discovered it, and he is the most successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases. He can be consulted free, personally or by letter.

Still Before the Committee.

The report sent out from Augusta to the effect that the committee of conference on the Eastern Maine Hospital matter had agreed to disagree and would so report to the Legislature was premature. It will be seen in another column that the question is still before the committee and we hope that a satisfactory compromise may yet be reached. We can see no good reason for a disagreement.

From the first we have not given much weight to the financial argument that has been advanced believing as we do that the people are not only abundantly able, but certainly willing to be taxed for the proper maintenance of all necessary state institutions. The people of this state were never more prosperous than they are to-day, and no word of complaint has been heard from them in connection with this appropriation. The matter has been before them for some time, in fact for several years, that additional quarters for the care of the insane, in view of the condition of affairs at Augusta, is known to be a state necessity and it has generally been accepted that this Legislature would provide the needed relief.

The financial argument, however, has disappeared as it has been demonstrated that after this appropriation has been made the State tax rate may be reduced next year, and the Board of Assessors are working up the valuations on that basis. It has been conceded on all sides that something should be done for the relief of the insane wards of the State, the only question of any importance being that of the proposed lack of funds. There is no longer ground to be any ground for delaying action upon the most important question that has been before the Legislature, now that it has been shown that the State can afford the needed institutional relief and still have a comfortable balance in the treasury.

The time remaining before the probable adjournment of the Legislature is short, but is ample for the settlement of this question in accordance with what very clearly appears to be the wishes of the people.

Minister Eustis.

In the appointment of ex-senator Eustis of Louisiana as Minister to France, the President seems to have combined, for reasons satisfactory to himself, the fact that Mr. Eustis was one of the first Democrats in the country to support his present administration. It is evident, however, that the selection is not pleasing to the editor of the New York [illegible], who is crushing in his vindictive. The [illegible] over the delay of those [illegible] the public mind of the following interview with Senator Eustis one eight years ago.

"Now, I say for me and [illegible] say emphatically that in my judgment Mr. Cleveland has [illegible] from a Democratic standpoint, been a conspicuous and unqualified failure. The half-hearted manner in which the President has been pursuing the important work of placing in the hands of trusted, capable and honest representatives of the party, through whose influence and almost superhuman exertion he was placed at the head of affairs those various charges and duties for the safe conduct of which the Democratic party is about to be held responsible to the people, is little less than disgusting. I strive to the confidence reposed in him by his constituents, his administration has commenced with a series of blunders, and his friends and supporters in Louisiana and throughout the Union have just cause for complaint. The Democracy, it would be well to state, is bigger than Mr. Cleveland and his Cabinet combined, of which both are but the creatures, and the representatives of that party a Washington will see that Mr. Cleveland shall pursue the proper line of action. The whole truth of the matter is, Mr. Cleveland is totally lacking in information respecting the conditions of affairs in the South and West, and is reliant entirely on the feverish advice of a couple of Mugwump papers in New York city, who are just as ignorant as he regarding those important sections. It is now no longer a matter of distribution of offices and Government patronage, but a question of party principle, and the Democratic element will see to it that this Administration is Democratic in the full significance of the term, or that Mr. Cleveland and his Cabinet shall fall and be buried in the ruins they have made.

As a result of this interview, says the Post, the Legislature of Louisiana when the term of Mr. Eutis expired, "sent a better man to take his place at Washington."

Mrs. Blaine's Plans.

SHE WILL LEASE THE WASHINGTON HOUSE—THE FAMILY TO VISIT EUROPE.

A Washington despatch to the New York Tribune says: Mrs. Blaine has decided to lease her Washington home on Lafayette Square. The house will be leased, furnished, probably for a term of years. Mrs. Blaine, Miss Blaine and Miss Dodge will leave Washington on May 1 for Augusta, where they will open the Blaine house. On June 3, Mrs. Blaine, Miss Blaine and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Damrosch will sail for Europe and spend the summer abroad. Miss Dodge will not go with them. She will devote herself to writing the life of Mr. Blaine. It was to Miss Dodge that Mr. Blaine gave all his private letters and papers—in themselves a legacy of rare value. A brilliant and strong writer, with a lifelong friendship growing out of intimate acquaintance as a member of the Blaine household for many years, Miss Dodge is, beyond all others, best qualified to give to the world the real life of the greatest statesman of his time. It is Mrs. Blaine's desire that her cousin should write the life of her husband, and she has authorized Miss Dodge to do the work.

Before returning to Washington last October, Mr. and Mrs. Blaine leased their Bar Harbor house to William D. Sloan, of New York, who will occupy it during the season. After their summer abroad, therefore, Mrs. Blaine, with her daughters and son-in-law will go to Augusta for the autumn. Later, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Damrosch will return to their New York home. Mrs. and Miss Blaine will return to Washington for the winter, when Mrs. Blaine will take a smaller house. It was on account of the size that Mrs. Blaine decided to give up her present house. The family is much attached to the historic "Seward house," and will not find any other Washington house so much like home. But the small family and the mourning which places them in retirement makes this large house a great care to Mrs. Blaine.

When Mr. Blaine purchased the Seward house he made a few changes in the original plan. The renovating was more with paint and polish than with anything else. The exterior was painted a dark, soft red, which gave the bricks their natural color, and the window shutters were painted a dark green. It is a roomy, rambling old house, with low ceilings. But Mr. Blaine made the interior one of the most beautiful in Washington. It is a dignified house, and the drawing-room, which is on the second floor, extends across the whole front, with its outlook in Lafayette Square; the wood work is everywhere finished in white enamel, and relieved in delicate lines of gold. It is a house of many windows, and gives the impression of cheer and sunlight in every room. There is never a remembrance of a somber shade in furniture or draperies, and no thought of anything too fine for everyday use. It is in the best sense of the term a beautiful home.

Since it is known that Mrs. Blaine will lease her home, "new people" are wondering if it will not be again a "Cabinet house." The Secretary of War is most freely mentioned as the probable tenant during the present Administration. Colonel Lamont is, among all the Cabinet officers, nearest to the President in personal relations. In the "Seward house," which is just across the street from the White House, he would be the President's nearest neighbor.

Gov. Russell on Life Insurance.

I take it that the first virtue that life insurance encourages is that prudence and foresight which leads to the future and seeks to make provision for it, and the next that economy and thrift which makes such a provision possible, and that after both of those virtues comes that of forgetfulness of self that sympathy and [illegible] which seeks to provide for the helpless and dependent in the days of poverty, sickness or of death. Now these virtues, I believe, make a manlier, sturdier, better citizenship, and so a greater, grander, more successful commonwealth.

COBBLED UP.
It is pleasant, however, to have your business finished to the entire satisfaction of everybody concerned, and this is just what our business has done.

[illegible] OVERCOATS.
Have you got to buy one? If so, don't fail to examine our Stock before purchasing. We have the largest line this season that we have ever shown, in a range of prices from $5.00 to $20.00.
We would call special attention to our $7.00 line. We are showing two styles---a medium and very dark grey, strictly all wool and fast color. They would be cheap at $8.00. We shall make them our Leader for a low price, honest coat, and shall run them at $7.00, sizes 35 to 48.
Our experience in the clothing business is that $10 and $12 are two very popular prices for O'Coats, and we have taken great care in selecting our stock to sell at these figures. We have no hesitation in saying that they are the Best Qualities, Best Styles, and Best Trimmed Coats ever shown in this market at $10 and $12.
[illegible] O'Coats at Ready-Wave Prices.
Our $15, $16, and $18 Coats are just that. January and February are two dull months in Custom Tailoring. It is necessary to keep our workmen employed in order to have them when business starts. We have manufactured just 100 O'Coats in our own shop; 10 styles Custom-made O'Coats at $15, $16 and $18. Goods thoroughly sponged and shrunk. Sizes, 34 to 48.

Senate Kills Listing Bill and Changes Liquor Laws.

[Special to Whig and Courier.]

AUGUSTA, March 22. That Biddeford police bill came back to the House from the Senate this morning in the form in which it first came to the House, that "non-partisan" amendment of the House having been stricken off by the Senate. Mr. Higgins, of Limerick, moved the passage of the bill as it came from the Senate. Mr. Adams, of Bangor, moved that the bill lie on the table for further consideration. He had good reasons for making this motion but would not now give them to the House.

Mr. Shaw, of Portland, opposed Mr. Adams' motion.

Messrs. Coffin, of Bangor, and Day, of Dixmont, favored the motion of Mr. Adams, which prevailed.

Then Mr. Adams moved that the bill be assigned to Friday morning.

Mr. Shaw spoke against this and argued strongly that the bill should now receive its passage. He wanted the gentleman from Bangor to state his reasons.

Mr. Adams said he should give no reasons. The attempt of the gentleman from Portland to hasten this matter was another of several this House. The Legislature would not adjourn for at least a week and there was plenty of time for considering this question.

The bill was assigned to Friday morning.

On motion of Mr. Adams, of Bangor, the bill relating to the reserve fund of trust and banking companies was passed to be engrossed under suspension of the rules. This is a copy of the Massachusetts law.

A big batch of committee reports came in from the Judiciary. Among these was the bill relating to sectarian appropriations, reported by a majority of the committee ought to pass and the Gower druggist bill came in from the Temperance Committee, the report being favorable. The rules were suspended and the act to confirm the organization of the Cumberland County Farmers' Club and to provide for its share in the

was passed.

Mr. Adams, of Bangor, said he supposed this bill was all right but he wished to call attention to the fact that the members from Cumberland county never forgot their duty to that county.

The resolve appropriating $1,000 for purchasing books for Maine State Library was reported favorably. The resolve appropriating $500 to the town of Cutler for aid in building bridges passed the House.

The resolve appropriating money for the State insane asylum came up and Mr. Adams moved it lie on the table till Tuesday of next week.

Mr. Powers, of Houlton, said he didn't want to see any matter go over till next week. Under the present order of the House to adjourn to March 24, it would be like referring the bill to the next session. He hoped if it wasn't considered now it would simply lie on the table.

Mr. Emerson, of Portland wished the gentleman from Bangor to state his reasons for wishing to lay over this matter which had been before the Legislature a good part of the winter and now came up in its regular order.

Mr. Adams said he had no excuse to offer. If the House didn't want to lay it on the table they were not obliged to do so.

After a series of motions the resolve finally passed to be engrossed, the attempt to lay on the table being lost, 55 to 31.

Mr. Woodbury, of Deering, occupied the chair during these proceedings.

The resolve laying a tax on the counties of the State passed to be engrossed in the House.

The bill to prohibit the unlawful

passed the House.

The bill relating to fraternal beneficiary insurance companies was passed with several amendments. Several short speeches followed on the motion of Mr. Bird, of Portland, to take up the bill, general law for organization of electric railroads, and amend it. He had tabled it in the passage to be engrossed.

Mr. Hamlin, of Ellsworth, spoke in favor of Mr. Bird's motion. He didn't think section 20 of the bill, which repealed all parts of railroad charters inconsistent with the act, should be repealed, as he didn't think this good legislation.

Mr. Powers, of Houlton, spoke against this sweeping section of the bill and others favored it. The attempt to amend the bill was defeated and the bill passed to be enacted.

In the Senate.

The Senate this morning tabled the bill for the protection of sheep. This was done on motion of Mr. Peaks.

The Senate rescinded the vote whereby it indefinitely postponed the bill in relation to the Manufacturing Investment Company, of Portland, and the bill was laid on the table.

The Winn Bridge.

The Senate this morning settled the controversy over the Winn bridge by passing the bill as it came from the House. That is, when the people of Winn have done their part in raising the necessary funds, the bridge has been built, a dam erected on the valuable water power which the Winn people hope is to make their town a flourishing manufacturing community, and a satisfactory guarantee given that $250,000 is to be invested in manufacturing enterprises at Winn, the State will help the matter along to the extent of $10,000.

Without debate the Senate to-day passed to be enacted the bill in relation to sentence and execution. This is the bill which restores to the courts the discretion of which the present liquor laws deprive them. Senator Thatcher was the only member who spoke upon the bill and he simply stated that he found the legal fraternity generally in favor of it.

The Senate referred the listing bill to the next Legislature. There is little curiosity as to whether the House will recede and concur for it doesn't seem probable the Senate will reconsider.

The Militia Bill.

The Senate this afternoon passed the militia bill proposed by the commission, and the bill now goes to the House. The Senate amended it by changing the provision relating to raising revenue for the militia. The original bill proposed a tax of one-tenth of a mill on every dollar of taxable property in the State, securing a revenue of over $30,000. The amendment changes one-tenth to one-twelfth.

The bill relating to taxation of real estate passed the House.

The bill providing for the inspection of milk was enacted in the House. The bill changing the hawkers and peddlers law so to exempt American citizens who are blind from its provisions, passed the House. The amended registration bill passed the Senate. The union label bill will probably become a law, having been engrossed in both bodies. The attempt to amend the law relating to the transportation of game was defeated in the House. The House amended and passed the bill taxing loan and trust institutions so they shall be subject to municipal taxation the same as national bank shares. The Senate passed the bill to prevent insurance companies outside the state from removing any suit from the state court to the United States courts, also forbids attempts in controlling fire insurance rates.

The Hospital.

The conference committee on the Bangor insane hospital has not yet reported, no agreement having been reached.

SENATE PROCEEDINGS.

Harris Elected President pro tem —Battle Over Elective Officers.

WASHINGTON, March 22. In the Senate to-day Mr. Manderson tendered his resignation of the office of President pro. tem. and Senator Harris, of Tennessee, was chosen for the position, to hold office during the pleasure of the Senate, in accordance with the resolution of March 12, 1890.

On motion of Mr. McPherson a resolution was adopted directing the Secretary of the Senate to wait upon the President and inform him of Senator Harris' election as president pro tem of the Senate in place of Senator Manderson, resigned.

Mr. Dubois offered a resolution (referred to the Committee on Contingent Expenses) for the appointment of a select committee of seven Senators to investigate the facts as to the recent difficulties between employing silver miners and working miners of Idaho, as to the employment of armed detectives in connection with difficulties, necessary for United States soldiers, their conduct, etc., with the usual powers. The Senate adjourned till to-morrow noon.

The Battle Over Elective Officers

began in executive session of the Senate to-day with the proffer of a compromise by the Democrats, the terms of which were that the present officers draw salaries until July 1, when the new officers shall qualify and assume office. The Republicans took the offer under advisement and will caucus upon it to-morrow.

The Senate confirmed the nominations of Frank B. Burke, of Indiana, to be attorney of the United States for the district of Indiana: David T. Guyton, of Mississippi, marshal of the United States for the northern district of Mississippi; Wm. H. Hawkins, of Indiana, marshal of the United States for the district of Indiana.

MALDEN, Mass., March 22. A telegram was received by the chief of police this evening from Colorado Springs, Col., announcing the arrest there of George W. Smith, who is wanted here for embezzlement. Some weeks ago Smith, who was employed as bookkeeper for E. E. Lock, a coal dealer of this city, left the office at noon time with some $800 in cash and checks he was to deposit in the bank. He did not return in the afternoon. A letter was received from him postmarked Boston in which were the checks. When arrested he confessed to embezzlement.

FOREIGN NEWS.

Oxford Defeats Cambridge Quite Easily.

LONDON, March 22. The Oxford-Cambridge boat race to-day was won by Oxford. Both crews struggled desperately but the Oxford crew pulled the more powerful and telling stroke and passed the finishing line two and a half lengths ahead of Cambridge. The official time was 18 minutes and 47 seconds, the best time ever made over the course, the best previous time made by Oxford last year having been 19 minutes and 21 seconds.

Oxford has now for four years in succession won the race. For the four preceding years Cambridge was the victor. The Oxford boat carried 1,471 pounds and the Cambridge boat 1,447.

Some Assistance to Them.

PARIS, March 22. M. Donon, chairman of the Societie des Depots et Comptes Courants, M. Gaulier, director, and M. Poisson, manager, were placed on trial to-day for having issued false balance sheets and numerous other frauds. The troubles of the company began in March, 1891, when a run upon it precipitated a financial crisis in this city. A collapse was averted by an advance of the company of 60,000,000 francs. Afterwards the company entered into liquidation. The court to-day ordered in the case that the claims of the shareholders be cancelled. The names of Charles de Lesseps and others were thus removed from the list of defendants.

M. Ferry's Funeral.

PARIS, March 22. The funeral of Jules Ferry occurred to-day. At an early hour the approaches to the Luxemburg and the route from the eastern railway station were densely crowded. An immense mortuary chapel had been erected in the court yard of the Luxemburg. The coffin, covered with a crimson and white pall, remained until 1 in the Salle des Gardes, where the body had lain in state, and was then removed to the catafalque.

At 11 persons having invitations began to arrive. There were judges, cabinet ministers, generals, diplomatists, senators, deputies, authors, naval officers, many with wreaths, sheaves and floral crosses, which they laid around the coffin. The municipal officers came in a body, followed by delegates from scientific and literary associations. Every department of the national and municipal government was represented.

Beginning at 1.30 eulogies were pronounced by Senator Barnoux, M. Casimir-Perier, President of the Chamber of Deputies; M. Meline and M. Ribot. The coffin was covered with the tri color, placed on the funeral car, and escorted by the family, cavalry and artillery was borne from the Luxemburg, followed by almost an endless procession through the streets filled with uncovered crowds.

Balconies and windows from the Luxemburg to the railway station were thronged with silent men and women. At the station the troops pressed back the crowd and formed double lines between which the coffin was carried to the train for St. Die. No disorder occurred during the services or on the way to the railroad station. The police expected a hostile political demonstration.

Laughter, Jeers and Yells Greeted the Accuser—Remarkable Scene.

BERLIN, March 22. In the Reichstag to-day, the committee appointed to examine the alleged incriminating documents presented by Herr Ahlwardt reported a resolution declaring that the documents contained nothing that would cast a slur upon present or former members of the Reichstag, Diet, or imperial or other German governments. Ahlwardt protested that the action of the committee deprived him of the chance of proving his case. The house laughed at him. Members of all parties made speeches condemnatory of Ahlwardt.

Ahlwardt attempted to make a defence of his action, but his voice was drowned by laughter, derisive cries and yells. Thousands of people gathered before the building and clamored for information as to the progress of the debate. The house was so crowded that many deputies were unable to get to their seats. The passages and galleries were filled to suffocation. Ahlwardt was treated with such contempt as has not before been shown by one deputy toward another in parliamentary precedents.

A statement was made this evening of the result of the examination of the Ahlwardt documents. They were simply receipts given to the Diskontogesellschaft, of which Dr. Miquel was director, by the Roumanian railway company. The Diskontogesellschaft is a private concern, and in its dealings with the railway was trying to save it from financial ruin.

Convicted of Complicity in the Assassination.

SOFIA, March 22. Gheorgieff, one of the most active opponents of the present government in Bulgaria, accused of conspiring against the life of Prince Ferdinand and other treasonable crimes, was to-day convicted of having been an accomplice in the assassination in March, 1891, of Finance Minister Beltcheff. Gheorgieff was sentenced to death. The court recommends him to mercy and will propose that Prince Ferdinand commute the sentence.

TARIFF CHANGES.

Wiseacres Draft a New Measure Upon the Subject.

To be Presented to Congress When Fully Completed.

An Outline of What is Proposed to be Enacted.

NEW YORK, March 22. The special committee of the Reform Club, of this city, consisting of E. Ellery Anderson, Charles S. Fairchild, Thomas G. Sherman, David A. Wells, John DeWitt Warner and Everett P. Wheeler, has completed the draft of a bill, which when perfected, will be urged upon Congress as a substitute for the present tariff laws and fulfilment of the pledges under which the Democracy obtained control of the national government.

The general principles upon which the proposed new tariff is framed are in the main as follows:

Crude materials used in manufacturing in general are made free of duty. In other articles the object is to fix such rates as would produce the largest amount of revenue in a series of years consistent with large importations.

of obtaining the largest revenue has been limited by the consideration of the welfare and necessities of the people at large, especially the poor classes. The purpose of obtaining revenue for the government having been made in good faith, the sole reason for levying any of these duties it is not thought necessary and hardly proper, to reduce the rates merely for the purpose of avoiding some incidental protection to domestic producers.

All duties are made strictly advalorem, except some levied as compensatory for internal revenue taxes upon similar articles produced at home. To secure the honest administration of an advalorem tariff essential rates of duty upon the great mass of articles should be kept at very moderate figures. Upon articles of immense value and small bulk it is absolutely necessary to impose very low duties, otherwise they will be smuggled by wholesale, and

No Revenue Obtained.

Upon other articles experience has shown that duties cannot be raised above 25 per cent. without offering dangerous incentives to fraud, and if they are kept at or below that rate the inducements to fraud are not often sufficient to compensate for the risk of punishment.

Few articles of luxury may be excepted from the operation of these general rules in deference to the widespread prejudice on that point.

All foreign articles which if made here will be subject to internal revenue taxes must be subject to an equal tax.

It would be exceedingly desirable to have no specific free list but make everything free not made expressly subject to duty. All articles upon which the revenue collected is too small to pay for collection, and upon which it is not probable that any mere reduction of rates would produce a substantial revenue will be placed on the free list. The committee is satisfied that the proposed tariff would produce an immediate revenue of $120,000,000, if not more.

New maple candy has just made its appearance in the stores in this city and there will doubtless be the usual demand for it. There has been a good run of sap as the weather has been suitable. The roots of the trees have been covered with snow, the nights have been freezing cold and the days reasonably warm. The most of the maple sugar comes from the western and northern parts of the State, not much in this line being done in this section.

Executive Commissioner Mattocks and his family will have homelike headquarters in the building during the fair.

Grace church offers the public a great treat next Monday evening in presenting a song lecture, entitled Columbia, by Rev. Norman LaMarsh, the blind preacher, whose wonderful power of song is acknowledged by all who have come under its spell as one of the finest exponents of music of the soul now before the public. UNIVERSITY EXTENSION.

Another Instructive Lecture by Prof. Warren.

The second lecture in the Colby University Extension course, by Prof. Warren, took place yesterday afternoon at the First Baptist chapel, and was very fully attended by an intelligent and appreciative audience. In opening his lecture Prof. Warren spoke briefly upon the wonderful frescoes of Raphael in the "Hall of the Signatures" in the Vatican, with fine illustrations of the principal subjects treated by the great artist in this one of his most famous works. Then passing to the subject of his present lecture, he presented, with much of interesting detail and finish, the life, character, and works of this wonderful "all-around" genius, Micheal Angelo, or the "man of four souls," as some one has called him, in reference to the great versatility of his genius, which made him a master in both sculpture and painting, a leader among the patriotic defenders of his native city, and a poet of no small repute, won with the great fame of his countryman Dante overshadowing him.

The story of his youth, under the patronage of the magnificent Medici: his paintings and sculptures in Rome and Florence, with a photograph of his famous statue of "David", the pride and delight of that fair city in her proudest days; the frescoes in the Sistine chapel, the Mausoleum of Pope Julius II, and lastly, that wonderful work, over which the world has not ceased to wonder for more than three centuries, the church of St. Peter's at Rome of which he was both architect and decorator. Unlike his contemporary, Raphael, Angelo lived to old age, being 87 at the time of his death, and leaving behind him precious memorials of his genius in marbles and frescoes in chapels, churches and palaces in most of the great cities of his beloved Italy.

SONS OF VETERANS

Prize Offered for the Best Three Degree Ritual.

The members of Daniel Chaplin Camp, Sons of Veterans, of this city, have received notice that a prize of $300 is offered by the national encampment to the brother of the order who shall prepare and submit to the council-in-chief, at least thirty days prior to the meeting of the 12th annual encampment of the commandery-in-chief, the best three degree ritual, founded upon the three cardinal principles of the order, friendship, charity and loyalty, embodying the prayers and obligations verbatim, and the installation and memorial ceremonies without material alteration, as the same now exist in the present ritual.

The members of the council-in-chief to be the judges and determine upon the merits of the various rituals submitted, and the said council-in-chief to be required to report the ritual decided upon by them as the best presented for the consideration of the commandery-in-chief, the said prize money of $300 to be paid if the general plan, ideas and body of such ritual so recommended by the council-in-chief be adopted by the commandery-in-chief, but not otherwise.

And the council-in-chief is authorized to meet at the place to be selected for the 12th annual encampment, and not more than four days prior to the time fixed for the opening session thereof, to consider and prepare a report upon the rituals presented and proposed, and the members of such council-in-chief are authorized to separately suggest therewith any changes, amendments or modifications as may seem desirable by them, providing the same are not inconsistent with the general plan, ideas or bodies of such ritual.

Provided, however, that if, in the opinion of the council-in-chief, a better ritual than any one submitted can be formulated by the selection of one degree from each of the three rituals submitted, or two degrees from one of said rituals, and a third degree from a second ritual so submitted, then $100 for each of said degrees, aggregating the aforesaid sum of $300, and no more, shall be paid as above provided.

Was it Emblematical?

A few days ago when Dr. F. E. Sprague and wife were sitting at the window of their house on Union street, their attention was attracted to a bird which had alighted upon their piazza. What the bird was they could not determine but in size it resembled that of a robin. As the weather was too cold for any ordinary clothed bird to remain out of doors they concluded that it would be in the line of the work of the society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals to essay its capture. They accordingly went out upon the piazza and after a little dalliance upon the part of the bird the doctor put his hat over it and made it his captive. Upon examination it proved to be an owl of the Arcadian species. Where it came from, what its age, or why it sought the residence is not known.

A funny part of the affair is, that before leaving their home in Corinna Mrs. Sprague was a member of a club known as "The Owl Club," but which since her removal has passed into innocuous desuetude. While on a visit to Corinna recently, the old club was revived, and it is thought,—but of course this is only a conjecture—that the captive bird has come to her as the representative of the club. At any rate it will be preserved as such, and should death remove it from the meetings of the club its skin will be mounted and kept as the emblem of the followers of Minerva.

Municipal Court.

Edward Russell, who belongs in New Jersey, but who has not been there for the past 2 years, was before the court Wednesday, charged with an attempt to rob Roger Mullin. According to the testimony Officer Griffin was informed Tuesday evening that Mullin was being piloted by two men up the platform at the Exchange street station with an evident intention of robbing him.

Officer Griffin followed the men and saw Russell put his hand into Mullin's pocket. He thereupon took both to the station and locked them up. Mullin stated that he had no recollection of the occurrence. He had about $50 in his pocket at the time but owing to the appearance of the officer he had not lost any, he supposed. Russell had in his possession quite a large number of keys and an instrument which looked like a house breaking kit. The result of the hearing was that he was bound over to the August term of the Supreme Judicial Court under $100 bonds. He failed to get bail and was taken to jail.

John W. Gardiner, of Boston, was before the court charged with assault upon May T. Stevens, by slapping her in the face. The alleged assault occurred at The Norombega. Gardiner acknowledged that he pushed her but he denied the slapping. Judge Vose concluded that a fine of $1 and costs would be the right thing. Gardiner had not the necessary cash and went behind the bars.

The following cases of drunkenness were disposed of:

Thomas Day and Michael McHugh, $3 and costs. Committed.
James Fury, 30 days in jail.
J. W. Foster, $3 and costs. Appealed.
Thomas Griffin, Eugene Cunningham and Roger Mullin, $3 and costs. Paid.

SEEING DEAD FACES.

A Horrible Craving Possessed by Many People.

ITS CAUSE EXPLAINED.

What a Conversation Revealed—A Terrible Confession—Love of Sensation and Its Dangerous Results—A Doctor's Opinion.

"No I hate faces for me!" exclaimed a young lady yesterday when asked if she were going to take a last look at a friend who had just passed away. "I am going to the funeral but will not see her face."

"What a strange notion," said one of her companions.

"That's why I go to funerals," ... "I don't see why it is but I like to go to funerals whether I know the people well or not. There is something about the somber surroundings that seems to suit me."

Do you know that these young women are suffering from a disease? Well it is a fact. They are just like thousands of other people, men and women. It is just the result of the terrible wear and tear of our daily life with its constant rush and overwork, its business and home life. There is no rest; everybody is on the go ... When people get into ... they become ... It causes ... excitement or makes them ... and fretful. They crowd ... to hear exciting ... attend funerals ...

"... the great Safe Cure. The strong testimony given by thousands who have been restored to health and strength by its wonderful power is only a just tribute to the merit it is known to possess.

BEFORE USING.

(From Mr George R. Barker, of Corinna)

CORINNA, March 8, 1893.

Mr G. M Fogg, Dear Sir—I have a mare who was troubled with scratches last October and who became so lame that I could not drive her with any comfort. I got a box of your scratches cure after taking five different kinds, and had only used half a box when my horse was apparently sound again, until four weeks ago when the scratches broke out anew, the worst I ever saw. I used up the remainder of the box, and although I have been obliged to drive her every day through the snow, she is almost healed up. You can refer any one to me. This is written unsolicited, as I never saw you in my life that I know of.

Already the crew has completed covering a new part of the surface and preparatory work has been done on the rest. When the work is finished the church will be fully restored to its former beauty. The job will probably be completed by Friday or Saturday

The ... mill at Bucksport which is operated by Mr Donald Sargent, of South Brewer is running now, but stock is rather short on account of the poor condition of the roads and consequent difficult hauling. Some is arriving by train however, and keeps the saws quite busy. The mill has got out a large quantity of laths during the winter most of which has been shipped away by vessels, and has given employment to quite a crew of men. Mr Sargent is to be congratulated on the success of his enterprise

The entertainment given in East Eddington last week by the Young People's Society netted the organization about $25. They ... of presenting this sum to the East Eddington Band, which took part in the programme for the purpose of enabling it to erect a band stand in the village there. This band was organized last summer and under the efficient instruction of Mr A D Harlow, of Winterport who has recently resigned his position as leader of the Bangor Band, made fine progress, and now plays most creditably. The members are contemplating taking more lessons during the coming season

No policeman for South Brewer was elected at the City Council meeting Monday evening, by an oversight, but after the session Mayor Tefft instructed Officer O'Conner, whose time had expired, to serve until the next meeting of the board. At that time he will probably be re-elected. It has now been but a few months short of a year since the Officer began his duties at South Brewer and during that time has made a number of arrests and good order has been maintained there, in the main, a marked contrast with the condition of affairs there previously. A permanent salary was fixed for the position by the last council of $500 per annum

CITY REPORTS.

City Solicitor's Report

To the City Council

Gentlemen—I have the honor to respectfully submit the following report of the legal proceedings in which the City of Bangor has been interested during the past municipal year, so far as relates to cases that have actually been entered in courts other than water tax and tax collection suits

Thomas N Egery et als vs City of Bangor. The nature of this case is quite fully stated in the report of the City Solicitor for the municipal year 1884 and 1885. No legal representative of the late Thomas N Egery has appeared in the case, and the case stands as it did at the time of my last report

Mary A W Danforth vs City of Bangor. This is an appeal entered February 14, 1890, from the award of damages made by the City Council in laying out and accepting the extension of Date street and of Somerset street, 100 feet, more or less in each case. It appears that the plaintiff, under the advice of an attorney procured by deeds of release her grantor's interest in the premises taken for the extension of the two streets named, and erected buildings on a portion of the same premises and claims that the city should pay her some $3,000 to $4,000 for such land and the improvements. The City Council awarded nominal damages, claiming that the land in question was dedicated as a public way—that it so clearly appears on a plan of the City Common and adjacent streets and lots recorded in Penobscot County Registry of Deeds. The facts in this case were taken before Chief Justice Peters in May, 1890, and the case reported to the Law Court and argued before the Law Court at June Law Term 1890, and has not since been heard from

Harriet A Gillespie vs City of Bangor. This is an appeal entered February 14, 1890 from the award of nominal damages made by the City Council in laying out and accepting the extension of Cumberland street, so called, 100 feet easterly of Date street to Jefferson lane so called. The facts stated in the preceding case are so similar to the facts in this case that it is not necessary to repeat them. It is agreed that this case is not to be tried until the court has announced its decision upon the question of dedication which is at issue in the preceding case Danforth vs Bangor

Minnie G McDonald vs City of Bangor. This is an appeal entered February 4, 1890 from the award of nominal damages made by the City Council in laying out and accepting an extension of Cumberland street so called 100 feet westerly of Forest Avenue, to Washington lane so called. The facts in this case are so similar to the facts presented in Danforth vs Bangor that it is not necessary to repeat them here. It is agreed that this case shall not be tried until the court has announced its decision in the case Danforth vs Bangor

City of Bangor vs the Inhabitants of ... This is an action to recover for pauper supplies and to settle the pauper residence of the four persons named in the writ. The action was commenced and entered at the October term of the Supreme Judicial Court for Penobscot County 1891. By agreement between the parties the case was referred to Franklin A Wilson Esq., and trial thereof held before Mr Wilson as referee. The referee has rendered his decision in favor of the plaintiff, and his report thereon filed in court has been accepted and approved by the court and an execution issued therefor for the full amount claimed with cost which sums have been collected and turned into the city treasury

Frederick Sucie vs City of Bangor. This is an action in the case wherein the plaintiff claims to recover of the city of Bangor the sum of $800 as alleged damages to a horse, wagon and harness which he claims was damaged through the carelessness of the driver of a ... sprinkling Exchange and Washington streets on the 15th day of May 1891. It is claimed that Sucie's horse was hitched by the side of Washington street just easterly of the store occupied by Ferris & Pretto, that whilst so hitched the sprinkler drove by, threw water on the horse's legs and frightened him so that he broke loose, smashed up the carriage and greatly injured the horse by coming in contact with other vehicles before he was stopped, so much so that Sucie was obliged to dispose of the horse for a very small sum compared to what he was formerly worth. This case should have been tried before this time, and I urged a trial of the case at the October term before Judge Emery but the attorney for the plaintiff gave as an excuse for not being ready for an assignment of his case that his client was away in the woods and before arrangements for the trial of the case could be had, the court adjourned. This case should be tried at the April term of court

City of Bangor vs the inhabitants of Frankfort. This is an action to recover for pauper supplies. It was tried at the April term 1892, before Judge Haskell without a jury, and the presiding justice found as a matter of fact that this pauper gained a pauper residence in Bangor during the eight years that he was confined at hard labor in the State's prison in Charlestown, Massachusetts, during which time he did not have wife or child or any one to represent him in the city of Bangor. The case was carried up on exceptions to the ruling and argued before the Law Court in June last, and the full court has since rendered a decision affirming the ruling of the presiding justice

Ida Smith vs City of Bangor. This is an action in which the plaintiff claims to recover of the city of Bangor $3,000 damage for an alleged injury claimed to have been received because of a defect in Exchange street, in that one of the electric street railway poles has been allowed to stand two far into the street which pole they claim was a defect in the street. Before the suit was commenced the notice to the city of Bangor of the injury was referred to the committee on accounts and claims with the city solicitor added and quite an amount of testimony was taken which has been preserved for future reference and use. The action was entered at the last January term of the Supreme Court for this county, and will be in order for trial at the April term

Leona I Cleveland vs City of Bangor. This is an action wherein the plaintiff claims to recover $2,000 damage against the city of Bangor for an alleged defect in Exchange street. The action was commenced and entered at the last January term of the Supreme Judicial Court for the County of Penobscot, and will be in order for trial at the April term. This and the preceding case should both be tried at the April term of court so that all questions of law may be argued at the June law term sitting in Bangor

In May last, I was requested by the Overseers of the Poor to make an investigation as to the residence of an insane person who, it seemed was left in the streets of Bangor by direction of the officers in a city in Massachusetts. Upon investigation, I found that this insane person left Bangor some sixteen years ago, and has never had her home in said city since that time, but has always lived in Massachusetts. I went to Massachusetts and made a careful investigation as to where she had worked and made her home during these sixteen years, and became satisfied that she had made her home for more than eight years in the city of Cambridge, Massachusetts. A suit is now pending in court in Boston to settle the residence of this insane person. I urged that the case be tried during the month of January or February, but up to the present writing I have not heard from the attorneys having charge of it, but expect it to be called at an early date

City of Bangor, Complainant in Equity vs. F. O. Beal et als, as Trustees of the Hersey Trust Fund and the Bangor Mechanic Association, Respondents. This was a bill in equity commenced for the purpose of determining the question of the liability of the trustees of the Hersey trust fund in case they should turn said fund over to the city treasurer, in compliance with the order of the city council, and asking that a decree be made directing said trustees to turn said fund into the city treasury, and place the same subject to the orders of the city council of Bangor; also asking for a decree of the supreme court of the State sitting in equity, authorizing the use of said Hersey trust fund for the erection of a new city hall or Hersey Memorial Hall, for the use of the city of Bangor, and to perpetuate the memory of the donor of the fund, the late Gen. Samuel F. Hersey, and also to pass upon a contract entered into between the city of Bangor and the Mechanic Association at the time said fund was disposed of, which agreement provided that the income of said fund should always be used to support a Bangor Public Library. This action was entered in court in August last. The answers of the respondents were promptly filed. The question presented was argued in writing by myself in behalf of the city, and by Hon A. W. Paine and Appleton & Chaplin, as solicitors for the respondents, and was promptly certified by the clerk to the court for an opinion. An opinion was obtained in November, authorizing a decree directing the trustees of the Hersey fund to turn it over to the city treasurer, and settling other important questions relating to said fund.

TAX COLLECTION SUITS.

During the past year, by the direction of the mayor and the city treasurer, I commenced quite a number of tax collection suits all of which have been satisfactorily adjusted with the city treasurer. I therefore respectfully request that I may be permitted to omit giving the names of the parties against whom the suits were commenced in this report

STATE PAUPERS.

I have made up and presented to the Governor and Council, eight claims against the State for the support of State paupers, and insane persons in the insane asylum, seven of which have been allowed and paid to the city treasurer and the eighth disallowed

OPINIONS.

I have been called upon to render a large number of written opinions upon matters of importance to the city, on questions submitted to me by the mayor and by the city council, also by the heads of departments, and making the necessary examination, and the time devoted to properly preparing these many opinions has been a great tax upon my time, and in fact, it has taken very much more of my time to transact such business as has been required of me than it has during any previous year, which would seem to indicate that the duties of the department and the time required to properly attend to the same are increasing each year

Notwithstanding the increased demand upon my time, I have endeavored to give prompt and faithful attention to the city's business, and have all business promptly attended to to the end that the interest of the tax payers should not be allowed to suffer because of any neglect to give prompt attention from this department

Questions are constantly arising in all departments of the city government, involving the construction of the charter and the ordinances of the city, and other legal rights, many of which questions have hitherto been passed upon by written opinions of my predecessors which are on file, and it often takes much valuable time of officers to investigate the papers on file in the clerk's office in order to make an examination of those opinions. Therefore, I respectfully suggest whether or not it would not be for the best interests of the public service to have all written opinions published in the annual report for the present year

COMMITTEES.

During the past year the city solicitor has been added to many committees that have been appointed to consider important business referred to such committees such as the consideration of important claims presented against the city and referred to the committee on accounts and claims an examination of the recommendation of the city clerk for amendment to the ordinance referred to the committee on By Laws and Police Regulations, the order directing the joint special committee to investigate the method of taxing and ... posts in the municipal court of the city of Bangor and the order for a joint special committee to investigate the records kept by the recorder of the municipal court of the city of Bangor and several other committees

All committees are entitled to the services of the city solicitor when desired by asking for the same. Therefore why should he be added to committees

The city solicitor has been employed very many times by the mayor and different members of the city council in formulating orders, ordinances and resolves, and ... in the city solicitor ... it is to the ... on the city solicitor has occupied when added to such committees. They have to say that he has intended to ship in course of action upon the theory that the city solicitor performs all his duty to committees in giving them his opinion on ... matters before them ... the city government that he ... nothing whatever to do with legislation with what measures are wise or unwise with what orders should be presented or passed by the city government and what not and he has not regarded it as a part of his duty to take part in settling the question of facts before the committees

Therefore, it is intended that it should be understood that his relation to the committee was to give legal advice on any question of law and to put any order ordinance or resolve into the proper form after the mayor or member of the city government has directed him what order, resolve or ordinance they wish drawn to present to the city council. That in all cases the members of the city council upon committee should find the facts

STATE LEGISLATION

In compliance with order from the city council I have drawn and presented to the Legislature an amendment to Special Laws of 1854 relating to wharf lines giving the city of Bangor by ordinance jurisdiction over the public and private ... to the wharves in the city and ... before the committee on legal affairs in behalf of the city which resulted in a favorable report and the law has passed and been signed by the Governor

Also in compliance with your order I appeared before the committee on legal affairs and advocated the amendment of section fifty two of chapter three of the revised statutes relating to the interest on trust funds. That committee has made a unanimous report to the House and Senate in favor of the proposed amendment and it was laid on the table pending its third reading on motion of a gentleman from Aroostook County and there remained on the table for about four weeks but has finally been taken from the table and passed the House and is now upon the table in the Senate. I have been assured by the Senator upon whose motion it was laid upon the table that he will call it up on the 21st or 22d inst so that it may be acted upon by the senate

I have also appeared before committees on several other matters in which the city was interested, and performed such services as I believed would be for the best interest of the tax payers of Bangor

The performance of duties under orders of this kind does not come within the provisions of the ordinance relating to the duties of city solicitor.

In conclusion, I desire to extend to the Mayor the members of the City Council, the heads of the several departments, and all connected with the Municipal Government, my sincere thanks for their courtesies during the past year

Respectfully submitted,
HENRY L MITCHELL,
City Solicitor

A MYSTERIOUS SHOWER

The Man In the Yard Below Saw Some Queer Things Come Down

While at a hotel in Townsville Australia one morning I was at work skinning some ornithological specimens, mostly ducks and herons. After awhile I glanced out at the window to look for a place to throw the bodies. There was a livery stable almost directly beneath, with a small yard at the back. I thought I could safely throw the bodies into this yard and then when I had finished the work go down and remove them. So, wrapping a newspaper about the first one I dropped it out of the window. The fall was so great that the paper split and exposed the skinned and purple ... body ...

In great disgust he threw the body over the fence and going into the stable brought out a harness which he began to wash. But very few moments he ... the ... of the hotel ...

Wonderful and True

Totally Blind with Scrofulous Sore Eyes

Hood's Sarsaparilla Gave Back Her Sight, and Joy to Her Father's Heart.

"Waterbury Vt., Nov 19 1892.

"C I Hood & Co Lowell, Mass

In April 1881 my little girl Mamie, who was then 3 years old, commenced having ulcerated eyes, also had sores back of her ears. Her sight began to grow dim, and I feared she Might be Blind.

I then lived in Jericho, Vt. In the early days of June I went with her to the Mary Fletcher hospital in Burlington and there she was treated four different times—a surgical operation each time one of which left the scars now visible on the eye balls. She recovered from this treatment each time, a slight improvement for a few days, was soon worse than ever. She could ... daylight from darkness but could not see to walk across the room.

"I next went to a large hospital in Hartford, Conn. At this hospital no surgical operations were performed but medicine was dropped into her eyes and given her to take. She was at this hospital about ten weeks continually growing worse, and when I took her in November

Was Totally Blind.

I arrived at my station in Jericho with the child, sad in spirit and impoverished in pocket completely discouraged. On our way to the house from the station, we stopped at the store of Capt. McKinnan, who was an old sea captain, to warm ourselves. The captain had known the child before we went away. While we were warming ourselves Mamie said

"'Papa, it's dark, where are you? I can't see you, come to me.'

"The captain's heart was touched, and with tears in his eyes he said

"'Charley, you go and get a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla and give it to her, and if it don't help her I will pay for it.'

"That very afternoon I got Hood's Sarsaparilla and commenced giving it to her according to directions. The first beneficial result was a brightening of the eyes, which continued steadily improving, until, under the treatment of Hood's Sarsaparilla, on the ninth day she could see to pick up a pin on the floor without its being pointed out to her, and before the first bottle was all used

Her Sight was Entirely Restored.

I keep Hood's Sarsaparilla in the house always, and when the child gets a little cold, if her eyes appear inflamed, a few doses settles it. I thank God first, Hood's Sarsaparilla, second, and Capt. McKinnan third. Many of the first families in Jericho can vouch for the facts given above. I am glad to give this testimonial of what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for me, which is good and lots of it. CHAS. A. ADAMS.
